Global Hand washing Day

A boy demonstrating how to wash his hands during the Global Hand washing Day celebrations held in Somaliland

Global hand washing Day celebrated every 15 October is a global advocacy day dedicated to increasing awareness and understanding about the importance of washing hands with soap and water to prevent diseases and save lives. This year's celebration took a new urgency amidst the corona virus pandemic that has built a fresh appreciation for washing our hands.

ADRA through the Somalia Wash Service delivery Improvement Program (SOWASDIP) project in partnership with the Ministry of Health in Puntland, observed the day in Qardho District, where the participants were reminded on the importance of washing hands. The significance of washing hands comes at a time when the world is dealing with the corona virus that requires consistent washing of hands with soap and water to prevent its spread.

Representatives from the education sector also voiced their concerns on the lack of hygiene promotion in schools, especially washing hands. They noted that it has always been a struggle and the situation has been made worse by COVID-19. They therefore urged ADRA and the Ministry to continue raising awareness on washing hands in schools.

ADRA also partnered with the Somali Broadcasting Corporation (SBC) in Puntland and aired a 3-day awareness raising on the importance of washing hands from 15th to 17th October 2020. The awareness targeted an estimated 1.2 million people.

The Director General in the Ministry of Water and Resources Development (MoWRD) in Somaliland

In Somaliland, the event was held in Togdheer Region in collaboration with the Ministry of Water Resource Development (MoWRD), Ministry of Education and Science (MoES) and the Ministry of Health Development (MoHD).

The Director General for MoWRD highlighted the importance of the day and urged participants to ensure that they always wash their hands. He also urged them to convey the message to their families and friends as well. A practical hand washing demonstration was also done, led by officials from the MoWRD.

A simultaneous event was also held in Baidoa in partnership with the Ministry of Energy and Water Resource (MoEWR) and the Ministry of Health (MoH).

WinS to Improve Hygiene in Schools

Participants who took part in the Wash in Schools (WinS) training in Qardho, District

ADRA in partnership with the Ministry of Education in Puntland, through the Somalia Wash Service delivery Improvement Program (SOWASDIP) project, conducted a 3-day WASH in Schools (WinS) training to 30 (11F&19M) participants in Qardho District. The participants drawn from 15 schools included CECs, teachers, and principals from primary, intermediary, and secondary schools. The purpose of the training was to equip the participants with knowledge and skills on the Three Star Approach hygiene.

The Three Star Approach for WinS is designed to advance the effectiveness of hygiene behaviour change programs, while ensuring that schools meet the essential criteria for providing a healthy environment for children.

During the discussion, it was noted that some of the schools do not meet the Star Approach. The participants also concurred that they have a huge task ahead of them that they could only achieve as a team.

To ensure this, ADRA has committed to support the schools to ensure they achieve the Three Star status in their schools. The participants then made a commitment to have all the necessary WASH facilities in place to enable their schools to be certified in the coming year.

Promoting Toilet Use Through Community Led Total Sanitation

Participants during the Community Led Total Sanitation training

Access to sanitation is not just a public health issue but a human right issue. Yet many do not have access to such facilities like toilets or latrines when nature calls. Poor sanitation challenges, especially the lack of toilets pose serious health concerns and has broad impacts beyond public health including living conditions and nutrition.

To address this issue, ADRA in partnership with Puntland's Ministry of Health through the Somalia Wash Service delivery Improvement Program (SOWASDIP) project rolled out the Community Led Total Sanitation (CLTS) program that is aimed at mobilizing communities to eliminate open defecation.

The initiative seeks to sensitize communities on the importance of using toilets in a process called triggering. Triggering enables the community to see the importance of having and using toilets. This is done in a manner that elicits emotions such as shame associated with the practice of open defecation.

Following a trigger in Qardho District, 76 households managed to dig their pit latrines while 120 households dug and constructed slabs on the latrines.

In Somaliland, ADRA in partnership with the Ministry of Health Development (MoHD), conducted a five-day training to 20 MoHD staff. The training was aimed to impart the staff with knowledge and skills and enable them partner with ADRA to implement the CLTS program.
